Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dube et al in view of the disclosed prior art (page 4, lines 22-26). Dube teaches a shelf (Fig. 2) having rows of openings (3) wherein the openings each include a first open area and two second open areas extending from the first open area (which is defined by two arcuate edges between the second areas), wherein the second open areas each have a transverse dimension less than that of the first open area. Although no method per se is disclosed for forming the openings in the shelves of Dube, some manner of forming these openings would inherently be required as part of constructing the shelf structure provided. As for the shelf accessories, Dube teaches dividers (1) with tabs (5) insertable into the openings by placing the tabs therein (in both openings) and sliding them and the divider forward to lock the divider in place (see Figs. 6B-6D). The tabs (5) extend between two areas of the first opening without occupying either. Although Dube fails to teach a second shelf accessory with a mounting arrangement having an axially extending mounting structure, the disclosed prior art (page 4, lines 22-26; members 22, 24) does teach shelf accessories attachable to a shelf wherein two of the accessories include a mounting arrangement with an axially extending mounting structure. Since the first open areas of the openings of Dube are circular, accessories such as rods 22 of the disclosed prior art and fasteners 40 of member 24 of the disclosed prior art, would be insertable therein and attachable to the shelf in a conventional manner (their ends/threaded ends would extend through the circular holes; the threaded ends being attached underneath by nuts 42). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to add other types of known shelf accessories, such as the divider and rods of the disclosed prior art, to the shelf members of Dube, depending on the desired need of the person using the shelf, i.e. for various organizational needs/depending on the types of articles to be stored on the shelves, for aesthetic reasons, etc.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed January 12, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Addressing the arguments concerning the Dube et al reference: Although it is agreed that tab 4 of Dube includes a tooth 6 that extends into the first opening when the divider is in place on the shelf, the examiner contends that tab 5 does not include this additional feature and that this tab still reads on the claimed tab and the tab/opening relationship limitations. See art rejection above. Furthermore, the claims are drafted using the open- ended transitional term "comprising" and thus do not exclude additional, unrecited elements, such as tab 4/tooth 6.

As for Dube not teaching plural uses for its shelf openings: as stated above in the art rejection, to add other types of known shelf accessories, such as the divider and rods of the disclosed prior art, to the shelf members of Dube, would depend on the desired need of the person using the shelf, i.e. for various organizational needs/depending on the types of articles to be stored on the shelves, for aesthetic reasons, etc. The construction of Dube's openings allowing for such a modification.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
